Our 133 Top Travel Specialists

Edited by Amy Farley and Brooke Porter Katz. Reported by Stirling Kelso

SUPER-AGENTS

These are the travel-industry all-stars, with the knowledge and connections to make any dream trip a reality.

Maita Barrenechea

With three decades of on-the-ground travel-management experience in Argentina, Chile, and Uruguay, Barrenechea has the friends and the industry connections to arrange entrée into Buenos Aires's fashion circles, an equestrian getaway at a Patagonia estancia, or a high-roller beach weekend on the Uruguayan coast. She's happy to see that travelers are showing increasing interest in lesser-known cities (including Rosario, Argentina, with its beautiful Art Deco architecture) and in nature reserves such as Puerto Valle, where Argentinean ostriches and alligators roam.

Trend watch A handful of new hotels and resorts are set to attract luxury travelers to overlooked destinations in Chile. The 22-suite Viña Vik is opening in October on an 11,000-acre vineyard in central Millahue. Later this year in the heart of downtown, Santiago welcomes the high-design Singular, sister property to the lodge in Patagonia.

Mai10, Buenos Aires; 54-11/4314-3390; maita@mai10.com.ar.

Jack S. Ezon ✓

Along with bespoke trips for individuals, Ezon plans nearly 30 celebrations around the world every year. To pull off these events, he has a party-planning department with unparalleled global connections. Though Ezon himself remains heavily involved in the details, picking out birthday venues in London, wedding bands in Punta Mita, and tasting menus at Cape Town restaurants. A former lawyer, he is an expert at negotiating on behalf of his clients and proudly cultivates a team that is skilled at keeping up with the demanding—and often last-minute—planning pace of today's travelers.

Trend watch Ibiza, Spain, a legendary party destination, is growing up, Ezon says, thanks to hotel openings such as Destino by Pacha and Ushuaia Beach Hotel. "It's becoming an alternative to St.-Tropez." He's also looking forward to new luxury cruise options in the Galápagos, including Silversea's Silver Galápagos.

Ovation Vacations, New York City; 800/977-5893;

jezon@ovationtravel.com.

Lisa Lindblad

Lindblad's background in anthropology is reflected in her itineraries, which often include neighborhood and cultural tours led by historians and in-the-know locals. All of her recommendations are the result of in-depth research done on behalf of clients. When one recently expressed interest in visiting the Dominican Republic's northern coast, Lindblad flew there to scout hotels, houses, guides, and restaurants. She thinks of every journey as an opportunity for cultural exchange, and hopes her clients end each day with a story to tell.

Trend watch "Trips are becoming multi-vocational," Lindblad says, noting the ways people are engaging with their travels—making videos and learning new skills, such as cooking or playing an instrument. Lisa Lindblad Travel Design, New York City; 212/876-2554; lisa@lisalindblad.com.

Mary Ann Ramsey ✓

Ramsey approaches her work with the mind-set of a financial planner, meeting with clients to discuss their long-term travel objectives and develop an execution plan. She maintains a master list of their goals and dream trips, and uses her frequent travels to vet destinations and experiences. Ramsey cruises regularly, and creating personalized shore excursions is one of her specialties. She also makes a point of flying various airlines to stay on top of new cabin layouts and designs.

Trend watch Scandinavia is becoming even more popular by both land and boat. "The scenery is spectacular, whether you are sailing through the Stockholm Archipelago or taking the Flâm Railway to hike Norway's Nærøfjord, a UNESCO World Heritage site."

Betty Maclean Travel, Naples, Fla.; 800/856-8111; maryann@bettymacleantravel.com.

Guy Rubin

When Rubin moved to China in 1994, he was surprised to find a dearth of resources for discerning travelers in a country so rich in cultural heritage and natural beauty. He and his wife and partner, Nancy Kim, set out to change that, and now lead China's most ambitious luxury tour operator. To keep up with the country's rapid transformation, Rubin is constantly inspecting new hotels—Beijing has seen the arrival of a Waldorf Astoria; a Rosewood and another Mandarin Oriental are still to come—and developing new experiences. In Hangzhou, he can set up a tour of a pharmacy and museum with a practitioner of Chinese medicine; in Shanghai, he'll arrange a nightlife tour that explores the jazz scene.

Trend watch Rubin has seen increased interest in Chengdu, which is home to the giant panda, the heart of Sichuan cuisine, and the jumping-off point for a visit to the ancient archaeological site of Sanxingdui. A Ritz-Carlton recently opened in the city, and Temple House and a Six Senses are opening soon. Imperial Tours, Beijing; 888/888-1970; guy@imperialtours.net.

Anne Morgan Scully ✓

Scully's clients can expect seamless trips that are full of surprises, from airport transfers in luxury cars to thoughtful amenities, such as a bottle of champagne, as they check in to their hotel rooms. She stresses the importance of well educated guides who are fantastic storytellers and local tastemakers who can enrich a trip with their insider knowledge. Having watched the cruise industry develop over the past 30 years, Scully is also an expert on luxury ships, from ocean liners to private yachts. She recently became the godmother to Ingvi, a new Viking River Cruise ship.

Trend watch River cruising in Europe is booming, as Uniworld, Tauck, and Viking create more itineraries along the Rhône. Scully also notes an increased interest in U.S. national parks (Yellowstone, Yosemite, and the Grand Canyon) among families looking for exclusive, skip-the-line trips.

McCabe World Travel, McLean, Va.; 703/762-5055; anne@mccabeworld.com.

Pallavi Shah

When Shah evaluates a destination, she goes beyond simply checking out hotels and restaurants. She dives into its historical context and cultural background. She is especially drawn to experiences that connect travelers with locals. In India, for example, she asks her favorite designers and craftspeople to open up their houses and studios and show guests the artistic process behind their textiles, clothes, and jewelry.

Trend watch A renewed desire to visit wellness destinations, ranging from sybaritic resorts such as CastaDiva, on Lake Como, in Italy, to top-notch medical spas in countries such as Italy, Turkey, and India.

Jim Strong ✓ & Nancy Strong

Attention to detail from the first meeting, accessibility (as a rule, their phone is answered on the first ring), and a contagious passion for travel define this mother-and-son team. They arm clients with both paper and digital copies of itineraries that are loaded with confirmation numbers and names, plus who to call for assistance at any hour. Proof of Jim's enthusiasm for his industry? He recently produced an off-Broadway play, Craving for Travel, about the trials and rewards of being an advisor.

Trend watch More high-budget clients are requesting "wheels-up to wheels-down" assistance to facilitate travel every step of the way. Guides not only reconfirm pickups and flight schedules, but even pre-scout restaurants before a meal, selecting the best table and informing the chef of food preferences and allergies.

Strong Travel Services, Dallas; 214/361-0027; jim@strongtravel.com and nstrong@strongtravel.com.

Valerie Ann Wilson

Wilson is an industry influencer with 16 offices around the United States and more than 30 years of experience. She's chairman emeritus of Virtuoso's advisory board and a valued advisor for half a dozen luxury hotels and travel brands. She's also written two travel books and is on the road for more than a third of every year. Wilson and the staff of her top-notch agency (now also under the leadership of her daughters, A-Listers Jennifer Wilson-Buttigieg and Kimberly Wilson Wetty) are well traveled and highly organized. But they still enjoy the collaborative nature of trip planning with clients. "Part of the fun is hearing their ideas and vicariously traveling through each customer," Wilson says.

Joel A. Zack

Concentrating on a small piece of the world—Portugal, Morocco, South Africa, Spain, and Turkey—and knowing these destinations inside and out gives Zack his edge. A dedicated team and network of well-connected locals sustain the business, which grew out of Zack's own curiosity and expertise as an architect and historic preservationist. "We focus on people perhaps even more than place," he says of his guides. They can open doors to experiences ranging from visiting a bullfighter's private farm in Spain to leading a boys' soccer workshop in a South African township.

Trend watch Interest in experiential travel continues to grow, Zack says. "Few travelers start the process by telling us their hotel likes and dislikes. They want to find the ways a destination addresses their passion, whether that's art, music, history, or sports."

Heritage Tours Private Travel, New York City; 800/378-4555; joel@htprivatetravel.com.

EUROPE

CENTRAL EUROPE

Nathalie Nagy

A part-time Budapest resident who is fluent in both Hungarian and German, Nagy is skilled at showing travelers an insider's perspective on well-known places, including Prague and Vienna. But she also enjoys introducing travelers to off-the-beaten path destinations such as Romania, Montenegro, Slovenia, and Slovakia.

Top tip When in Austria, don't miss a performance at the state-of-the-art, 400-seat concert hall MuTH (Musik and Theater), which opened two years ago to house the legendary Vienna Boys' Choir.

Years as agent 17.

Other specialty Western Europe. Protravel International, New York City; 212/409-9562; nathalie.nagy@protravelinc.com.

Ellison Poe

This part of the world is a second home to Poe, who grew up in Vienna and travels regularly to Austria and neighboring countries. She has spent a lifetime in the travel industry (her parents founded Poe Travel 54 years ago), so she's got tricks up her sleeve for scoring last-minute tickets to the Vienna State Opera or planning a private trip to a Lipizzan horse farm.

Insider clout In Mělník, Czech Republic, a friend of Poe's will open up his 14th-century castle overlooking the Elbe and Vltava rivers for a behind-the-scenes tour of the rooms and wine cellars.

Years as agent 28.

Other specialty India.

Poe Travel, Little Rock, Ark.; 800/727-1960; epoe@poetravel.com.

FRANCE

Murielle Blanchard

Never satisfied with secondhand reviews, this Paris native makes a point of personally vetting all of her recommendations, from auberges and stores to festivals and markets. Only after she gives a place an "A" rating (most recently, to a handful of charcuteries and crêperies in Brittany) is it worthy of one of her tailor-made itineraries.

Discovery Le Jardin des Plumes, a restaurant and eight-bedroom hotel housed in a 1912 limestone maison bourgeoise in Giverny, outside Paris. The original marble mantel and Art Deco tile floors set the stage for a three-course lunch, with dishes such as pork confit with artichokes.

Years as agent 30.

Other specialty Italy.

Black Pearl Luxury Services, Salt Lake City; 801/483-6533; murielle@blackpearlservices.com.

Bob Preston

A graduate of France's INSEAD business school who has lived in the French Alps and Paris, and on the Côte d'Azur, Preston prides himself on delivering exceptional access to his clients. He knows the country's influencers and tastemakers, and is able to open doors—a marquis's private estate just outside Paris, for example—that are typically off-limits to travelers.

Special booking For a family visiting Provence, Preston planned hands-on activities, including treasure hunts in remote villages in the Lubéron, Provençal cooking classes, and workshops with artists who are experts on Cézanne.

Years as agent 8.

Other specialties Italy and Switzerland.

EuroPanache, New York City; 888/600-6777; bob.preston@europanache.com.

GERMANY

Virginia Giordano

The Berlin-based Giordano is the cofounder and co-owner of Culture Trip, Germany's leading luxury travel agency. With her team of historians, architects, and specialist guides, she gets clients into private art collections and design studios, and can arrange introductions to personalities from the country's diplomatic, business, and (of course) cultural circles.

Insider clout For a group interested in Cold War history, Giordano organized a dinner with the head of the East German Secret Police, who evaded Western intelligence for so long that he was known as "the man without a face."

Years as agent 20.

Culture Trip Germany, Berlin; 49-30/305-3890; info@culturetrip.de.

GREECE

Mina Agnos

Agnos, who spends six to eight months a year in Greece, builds her itineraries with an exacting eye for detail. She makes both scheduled and incognito visits to preferred hotels (updating her list of go-to rooms, plus those to avoid) and meets with her hand-selected guides and drivers. Agnos even hangs out at regional airports to ensure the pickup process runs smoothly. Her staff also experience it all firsthand so they can share everything with clients, "down to the views, sounds, and smells."

Special booking Agnos created a series of tasting tours in Athens for a group of foodies. The itinerary included visits to meat markets, spice sellers, and modern agoras, allowing time to sample coffees, sweets, produce, and Greek liquors.

Years as agent 13.

Other specialties Turkey, Spain, and

Italy.

Travelive, Bloomfield, N.J.; 888/377-5483; mina@travelive.com.

Christos Stergiou

A champion of experiential travel in off-the-beaten-path areas of Greece, Stergiou introduces travelers to boutique hotels, private farms and wineries, and guides who have a knack for storytelling. Based in a suburb of Athens, Stergiou—who gave a Tedx talk about entrepreneurship and his company, TrueGreece—makes a point of meeting clients in person when possible.

Excited about The quiet island of Spetses, just off the eastern coast of the Peloponnese: "No cars are allowed, so people get around by water taxi, motorbikes, and horse-drawn carriages." You can catch the water taxi there from the increasingly popular village of Porto Heli on the mainland, near the two-year-old Amanzo'e resort.

Years as agent 10.

Other specialties Turkey and Italy.

TrueGreece, Maroussi, Greece; 800/817-7098; christos@truegreece.com.

Petros Zissimos

When Zissimos took over his family business a decade ago, he saw great potential in Greece's affordable-luxury market. By relying on personal contacts rather than third-party planning companies, he can craft personalized itineraries (surprise yacht trips along the Bosphorus; private cooking classes on a farm in Crete) often at a lower price than his competitors.

Special booking For a client planning a marriage proposal in the Cyclades, Zissimos not only secured suites and tables at some of the region's top resorts and restaurants but he also made sure transportation was seamless, with private catamaran rides instead of ferries. For the question-popping night, he arranged a five-course meal on a beach in Mykonos, complete with candles and a small band.

Years as agent 10.

Other specialty Turkey.

Hellenic Holidays, New York City; 212/944-8288; pzissimos@hellenicholidays.com.

IRELAND

Carol Cornell

Cornell is equally skilled at finagling coveted tee times, snagging prime tables at Dublin pubs on St. Patrick's Day, and assisting travelers in tracing their ancestry via her Rolodex of historians, professors, and church record-keepers. She always provides detailed walking and driving directions throughout the country's vast, and often confusing, countryside.

Excited about The rising popularity of cottage rentals—perfect for families and groups—in areas such as County Cork and Connemara. She personally vets any house before recommending it to a client.

Years as agent 30.

Other specialty Italy.

Covington Travel, Fort Wayne, Ind.; 260/402-6789; carolc@covingtontravelinc.com.

ITALY

Joyce Falcone

In the past few years alone, Falcone has hiked her way across Elba, skied the Dolomites, sailed from Sicily to Naples, rented houses in Venice and Chianti, and slept in innumerable boutique hotels—all for the sake of delivering exceptional insights for her clients. The dual American and Italian citizen tailors trips to her clients' interests (Slow Food; art history; design), but also makes a point of expanding their horizons.

Excited about The spectacular Giardino di Ninfa, built around the ruins of the ancient Roman village of Ninfa: "The gardens present a magical view of nature and antiquity intertwined."

Years as agent 19.

The Italian Concierge,

Far Hills, N.J.; 888/674-3311; info@italianconcierge.com.

Emily FitzRoy

On her monthly visits to Italy, FitzRoy hits the big cities as well as lesser-known corners to find hidden gems. She can lead you to the backstreets of Bari, where women sell fresh orecchiette from their front doors. In Maremma, Tuscany, she has an exclusive villa with private access to the Tarot Garden. And she'll book you at the 10-room boutique hotel Don Ferrante, set in a humble fishing village in Puglia.

Insider clout For a wedding in Venice, FitzRoy transformed an unused boatyard into a party space and arranged a concert by a local Gypsy band. The next night, the group attended a performance at the Venice Opera House, arriving at the secret backstage entrance via Riva boats.

Years as agent 17.

Bellini Travel, London; 44-20/7602-7602; emily@bellinitravel.com.

Andrea Grisdale

Based in Como, Italy, Grisdale has a knack for innovation: she recently developed her own app so that clients could have easy access to their travel plans. She takes a similar approach to her itineraries, finding novel ways to personalize and enrich them, from offering a behind-the-scenes look at the historic Palio horse race in Siena to planning a tour of the islands off the Amalfi Coast by kayak.

New favorite The J.K. Place Roma.

"It ticks all of the boxes: elegance, warmth, a fantastic location, excellent service, and a sense of place in each of the 30 individually designed rooms."

Years as agent 22.

IC Bellagio, Bellagio, Italy; 39-031/952-059; andrea@icbellagio.com.

Uri Harash

Harash, who settled in Rome in 2001, is skilled at immersing travelers in his adopted country. For painters, he can coordinate classes with an artist in her private studio in Trastevere. If you're a fan of Formula One, he'll put you in a Ferrari race car for a spin around the track. His love of Italian culture extends to his detailed itineraries, which include inspiring photographs.

Top tip If you're in the market for a fine, tailor-made suit in Rome, stop by La Camiceria di Piero Albertelli, whose clients include Valentino and other Italian VIP's.

Years as agent 15.

Perfetto Traveler, Rome; 39-345/040-6396; info@perfettotraveler.com.

Beth Rubin ★

While she can plan romantic trips to Florence or family vacations to Rome, Rubin encourages travelers look beyond popular destinations. In Calabria, she has helped clients track their ancestors. From Milan, she's set up excursions to cities such as Mantua and Cremona. Even on classic itineraries, Rubin tempts clients with innovative day trips or excursions, such as an overnight at the Casa Fabbri farm, in Tuscany, where the owners prepare lunch straight from the garden.

New favorite The 18-room D.O.M. Hotel Rome, housed in a monastery and located on what Rubin considers the Eternal City's most beautiful street. "With all of the hullabaloo surrounding the new J.K. Place Roma—and rightly so—this lovely property flew under the radar."

Years as agent 14.

Other specialty Croatia.

Select Italy, Chicago; 800/877-1755; beth@selectitaly.com.

Marjorie Shaw

Shaw's Roman roots can be traced back to her grandfather, who moved to the Italian capital from New York in 1919 to take up a post at the American Embassy. She was raised in Rome and lives there now with her husband and two children. Their frequent explorations of Italy have made her an expert in family travel, though honeymoon and group trips are also in her wheelhouse. She can pull strings for private food and wine experiences in Puglia and insider art and history tours in Venice.

Special booking For a client who wanted to relive childhood summers on the Mediterranean—especially the taste and smell of sun-warmed figs—Shaw planned a late-September trip (when the fruit is at its peak) along the Amalfi Coast. The client and his wife took cooking classes and gathered wild figs on guided hikes.

Years as agent 25.

Other specialty Family travel in Italy.

Insider's Italy, Rome; 914/470-1612; info@insidersitaly.com.

PARIS

Yaron Yarimi

Yarimi—who considers Paris to be in a “constant state of rebirth and reinvention”—owes his encyclopedic, finger-on-the-pulse knowledge to extensive research trips, which take him beyond the expected hotels and museums to super-local flea markets, after-hours clubs, and fledgling restaurants. Before each trip, he briefs his clients on local customs, tipping, and upcoming events they may be interested in attending.

Insider clout For a couple celebrating their anniversary in Paris, he arranged a private cooking class with chef Alain Passard of L'Arpège and after-hours tours of both the Musée d'Orsay and Chartres Cathedral.

Years as agent 20.

Other specialty Italy.

Frosch, New York City; 212/784-0391; yaron.yarimi@frosch.com.

RUSSIA

Greg Tepper

Genuine VIP experiences in Russia (curator-led tours of St. Petersburg's Hermitage Museum; a behind-the-scenes look at the Bolshoi Theater) require serious connections, which Tepper has in spades. He founded Exeter while working and living in Russia, and now travels to the country no fewer than five times a year. His guides are among the very best in the country.

Insider clout Only a certain number of people per day are allowed into the new Fabergé Museum, located in the Shuvalov Palace in St. Petersburg, but Tepper's clients get no-line, priority access and a private tour with an English-speaking guide.

Years as agent 20.

Other specialty Eastern Europe.

Exeter International, Tampa, Fla.; 800/633-1008; greg@exeterinternational.com.

SCANDINAVIA

Tor Jensen

A former Scandinavian Airlines executive, Jensen has crisscrossed the region for decades. (It helps that he's fluent in Danish, Swedish, and Norwegian.) His talents range from setting up complicated adventure trips—sea kayaking in Norway; crossing Greenland on dogsled—to securing coveted reservations at Noma, in Copenhagen.

Excited about Greenland, where a Jensen-stamped itinerary might include the Viking ruins at Qassarsuk and a boat tour of the Qoroq Ice Fjord.

Years as agent 21.

Other specialty Southeast Asia.

Jensen World Travel, Wilmette, Ill.; 800/853-6736; tor@jensenworldtravel.com.

SCOTLAND

Claire Schoeder

Schoeder opens doors throughout the country thanks to her network of well-connected friends. Turn to her for private whisky-cellar tours, falcon hunts, and overnights on family estates. Some of her favorite trips, though, are relaxed drives with stops at top restaurants. If you have Scottish ancestry, ask about her genealogy and clan-history guide.

New favorite The Cromlix House, which opened in April, is set on 34 woodland acres in Perthshire. Of the 15 rooms, opt for one of the five beautifully restored suites, outfitted with claw-foot bathtubs and Arran Aromatics toiletries.

Years as agent 22.

Other specialty England.

Century Travel, Atlanta; 800/533-6336, ext. 4011; claire@centurytvl.com.

SPAIN

Virginia Irurita

A former banker, Irurita founded the Madrid-based Made for Spain as a way to share her enthusiasm for the country's history, culture, and laid-back lifestyle with travelers. Through her stable of nontraditional guides, including professional architects and writers, she plays the consummate insider host, arranging tapas crawls in Seville, sherry tastings in Cádiz, and designer studio visits in Madrid. Her team is always on call, ready to deal with any missed flight or other travel mishap.

Excited about The hotel Castell Son Claret, housed in a restored castle in the Majorcan countryside. Spacious rooms overlook the estate, which is filled with olive and palm trees.

Make reservations at Zaranda, its Michelin-starred restaurant, for seasonal dishes such as a terrine of partridge with foie gras, cabbage, and black truffles.

Years as agent 16.

Other specialty Food and wine.

Made for Spain, Madrid; 34/91-448-7275; virginia@madeforspain.com.

SPAIN AND PORTUGAL

Joel A. Zack

See Super-Agents.

SWITZERLAND

Ilene Koenig

Switzerland is a notoriously expensive destination, but Koenig is skilled at finding great deals and working within various budgets. As a ski enthusiast, she knows the local slopes inside and out, including ritzy Zermatt; the more low-key towns of Andermatt, high up in the Gotthard pass; and Wengen, a car-free village accessible only by train.

Discovery “The charming town of Saas Fee feels like Zermatt thirty years ago,” Koenig says. Stay at the plush FerienArt Resort & Spa, with Alpine-themed rooms and a large wellness center.

Years as agent 29.

Other specialty Skiing.

Let's Travel (a division of Plaza Travel), Santa Monica, Calif.; 800/458-7477; ilene@letstravel-sm.com.

UNITED KINGDOM

Ellen LeCompte

LeCompte—who went to school in England and lives part-time in a 17th-century cottage in the Cotswolds—will satisfy even the most zealous Anglophile. She can book special tours of Highclere Castle, where Downton Abbey is filmed, arrange tea with prominent members of the aristocracy, and secure box seats at Manchester United games.

Top tip Shoppers in London should check out V.V. Rouleaux for ribbons, tassels, and room trims. For designer consignment, don't miss Pandora Dress Agency.

Years as agent 23.

Other specialty Paris.

Brownell Travel, Richmond, Va.; 804/353-0075; ellenl@brownelltravel.com.

Linda M. Raymer

Raymer looks at each journey she creates in three parts: the planning process, the trip itself, and the stories you tell afterward. She will put together private dinners in country houses, a tour of London in a Mini Cooper, and an excursion to Queen Elizabeth's Hunting Lodge, where you can play Tudor for a day.

Insider clout For a group of musicians, Raymer arranged a dinner in the crypt of St. Martin-in-the-Fields, as well as a private organ recital in Westminster Abbey. They also climbed to the top of the bell tower for a demonstration by the bell ringers.

Years as agent 30.

Other specialties Switzerland and Italy.

Travelink, American Express Travel, Nashville; 615/277-5146; linda.raymer@travelink.com.

Susie Worthy

If it's high-end and exclusive experiences you want, this London-based advisor delivers: lunch and a match at the Guards Polo Club; private boat parties on the Thames; and front-row seats at the Old Vic Theatre with backstage passes to meet the actors.

Excited about The century-old Rosewood London on High Holborn, which was recently revamped for $130 million. “The historic building has been wonderfully adapted without losing its Edwardian Belle Époque architectural features,” Worthy says. Stop by the Mirror Room (named for its ceilings) for afternoon tea.

Years as agent 28.

Other specialty Paris.

Note Worthy Events, London; 44-20/3051-5165; susie@noteworthy.co.uk.

HAWAII

Carolyn Brandon

Brandon has used her 70-plus trips to Hawaii to develop key relationships with the people behind the state's top hotels and tour outfitters—useful when securing popular guides or booking rooms at sold-out properties. She has an eye for uncovering rain-forest hikes and other little-known adventure activities.

Excited about The 36-passenger Un-Cruise Adventures yacht, which sails from Molokai to Kona. On the seven-night voyage, the crew leads kayak tours along undeveloped shorelines and night swims with manta rays.

Years as agent 32.

Other specialty Cruises.

Marilyn Clark ★

Regular trips (usually four times a year) and a deep commitment to the destination have made Clark a trusted source even among locals—no easy feat in the tightly knit Hawaiian community. She's one of about 10 individuals to hold all Master Specialist certifications for the islands, which means she's had on-site training and passed exams on Hawaiian culture and history.

New favorite The Andaz Maui at Wailea Resort. Maui's latest property has 297 rooms, but feels intimate thanks to private lanais. If you're visiting between January and April, you may see breaching whales from its Lehua Lounge, which is surrounded by cascading pools and waterfalls.

Years as agent 13.

Other specialty French Polynesia. Lighthouse Travel, Huntington Beach, Calif.; 888/339-1774, ext. 11; marilyn@lighthousetravel.net.

Ed Phillips ✓

Phillips has been drawn to the islands' natural beauty, friendly locals, rich culture, and culinary scene since his first trip, as a 12-year-old. He knows his way around both the luxury resorts (Trump's Waikiki property is a recent favorite) and active outdoor adventures, including hiking the lush trails of Oahu—all of which he will have trekked by the end of this year.

Top tip Tantalus Mountain Trail ("the hill" to locals), just outside of downtown Waikiki, Oahu, is often overlooked. You're likely to encounter residents—sometimes coming back from wild-boar hunts with game in tow—as you hike through rain forests to city lookouts and waterfalls.

Years as agent 25.

Other specialty Alaska.

Frosch Travel, Burlingame, Calif.; 800/962-2030; trvaler@gmail.com.

NAPA VALLEY

Michelle Murré

Murré frequently makes the easy drive from San Francisco to evaluate new hotels, restaurants, and experiences in the country's preeminent wine region. While she often directs clients to Napa's nature trails and other outdoor activities, she also maintains a little black book packed with contacts at exclusive wineries, many not open to the public. On her itineraries, the restaurant suggestions read like mini-reviews, with notes on design, food, and wine lists.

Excited about The refreshed Hotel Yountville, which has 80 large yet cozy rooms in stone-walled cottages, complete with fireplaces and complimentary bicycles.

NEW YORK

Lia Batkin ★

Batkin and her partner, Seth Kaplan, created the travel and lifestyle firm In the Know Experiences to cater to a younger set of savvy travelers who crave insider knowledge and local connections. In Batkin's hometown of New York City, that means access to coveted restaurant reservations, a shopping day with a personal stylist, and tickets to sold-out events in all five boroughs.

New favorite Japanese designer Rei Kawakubo of Comme des Garçons opened a Murray Hill outpost of her London store Dover Street Market, where pieces by Yves Saint Laurent and Alaïa mingle with those by emerging designers. "Warning: there is a lot of eye candy and it requires a decent amount of time to take it all in," she says.

PACIFIC NORTHWEST

Sheri Doyle ★

Focusing on travel to Washington, Oregon, British Columbia, and northern California for more than 20 years, Doyle has built a network of plugged-in insiders throughout the region who keep her up to date on new inns and activities. A Seattle resident, she's negotiated preferred hotel rates in the area's major cities. Her detailed, 20-plus page itineraries include experiences such as private dinners and wine tastings in the Willamette Valley.

Excited about On Lummi, one of Washington's San Juan Islands, the once-sleepy Willows Inn has become a dining destination thanks to chef Blaine Wetzel, who trained at Noma, in Copenhagen.

WESTERN U.S.

Harold Jenkins

"In many ways, it's more difficult to plan a trip to Montana than to Moscow," says Jenkins, who knows the rugged West's secrets thanks to a childhood spent exploring its backcountry and national parks. He travels through the Rockies and beyond at least four times a year, testing out private fishing rivers, road-trip routes, and ski mountains and meeting knowledgeable guides.

Insider clout As a birthday present from a husband to his ski-enthusiast wife, Jenkins arranged a surprise visit from legendary Olympic gold medalist Stein Eriksen at the top of a lift at Utah's Deer Valley resort.

Eriksen joined them on a run down the mountain.

CARIBBEAN

Margie Hand

An avid scuba diver, Hand fell in love with the Caribbean on her honeymoon 20 years ago. She's traveled to 14 islands in the past five years, including Jamaica, Aruba, Curaçao, and Grand Cayman, where she recently discovered a company that offers private sailing lessons. Hand can secure the little perks (room upgrades; late checkouts; spa credits) that make a getaway even more memorable.

Excited about Fresh energy in Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic.

There are new shops and restaurants, plus hotels such as Casas del XVI, a collection of restored colonial houses. With direct flights from JFK and a new highway linking the city to Punta Cana, Santa Domingo is increasingly accessible.

Janet McLaughlin

When it comes to hotel managers, chefs, gallery owners, and private yacht charters, McLaughlin has friends in the right places. To wit: she once booked clients into a resort on St. Bart's that was listed everywhere as sold out. She can also arrange sought-after restaurant reservations on St. Maarten, bonefishing expeditions in the Bahamas, and private diving trips on Curaçao.

New favorite Rosewood at Baha Mar, a British-colonial-style resort on Cable Beach in the Bahamas.

Scheduled to open in December, it will have an 18-hole, Jack Nicklaus-designed golf course.

BRAZIL

Martin Frankenberg

What sets this São Paulo resident—and his travel company, Matueté—apart from the competition? His unmatched knowledge. No expense is spared when inspecting hotels and experiences, and nothing (guides, drivers, etc.) is outsourced to local operators. Frankenberg can secure VIP tickets to Carnival's Sambodrome stadium events—but he'll also recommend exploring Brazil's lesser-known corners, including Lençóis Maranhenses National Park, in the northeast.

New favorite The Tamarind, a

105-foot classic yacht with beautifully refurbished interiors. It sails along the coastline south of Rio

Paul Irvine

After a 10-day trip exploring Brazil's remote regions, Irvine turned down a finance job and moved to Rio, where he cofounded Dehouche. The British expat values smaller, design-forward properties with top-notch wine cellars over large chain brands, and refrains from sending clients to hotels when he knows the manager will be away. When arranging itineraries, Irvine is especially attentive to the weather, which can vary widely from region to region.

Insider clout One of Irvine's soccer-fan clients had access to every game during the 2014 World Cup, and was shuttled between stadiums by private jet. Irvine also arranged drumming lessons with a top samba school and a meeting with a celebrity Brazilian soccer player. Years as agent 11. Other specialty Argentina. Dehouche, Rio de Janeiro; 800/690-6899; paul.irvine@dehouche.com.

CENTRAL AND SOUTH AMERICA

Emmanuel Burgio

Burgio worked in finance before creating his travel company, Blue Parallel, which specializes in top-of-the-line bespoke getaways that combine luxury and adventure. He can arrange both solo ice treks through Argentina's Perito Moreno glacier and family-friendly polo lessons on a private estancia—all with 24/7 concierge service. The company also has a collection of private villas, staffed by members of Burgio's team. Special booking Burgio coordinated a wine tasting in the private cellar of Cassis restaurant, located in San Carlos de Bariloche, Argentina, with the owner, Ernesto Wolf. Years as agent 12. Other specialty Mediterranean. Blue Parallel, Potomac, Md.; 800/256-5307; emmanuel@blueparallel.com.

CHILE

Brian Pearson ★

There's little the Santiago-based Pearson hasn't experienced when it comes to outdoor adventures in Chile. He's cycled thousands of miles to develop bike itineraries, personally testing all of the stops along the way (picnic lunches in peach orchards; wine tastings in private vineyards). He's also the general manager of Ski Arpa, an exclusive snowcat ski mountain in the Andes that's open June through September. Excited about Colchagua Camp, a little-known glamping lodge outside of Santa Cruz in the heart of a Chilean wine valley. Dome-shaped tents have private terraces with hot tubs and are surrounded by lemon groves. Years as agent 11. Other specialties Argentina and Uruguay. Santiago Adventures, Santiago, Chile; 56-2/2244-2750; bpearson@santiagoadventures.com.

GALÁPAGOS

Brian Morgan

Due to constantly changing park regulations, the Galápagos can be a difficult destination to navigate—but Morgan and his staff of 19 do it with ease, arranging everything from scuba diving to boat transfers between islands. He has in-depth knowledge of the region's 50-plus small ships and luxury cruises, including each vessel's comfort level, activity options, and routes. Excited about Increasingly popular land excursions, such as the safari-like Floreana Lava Lodge, on Floreana island south of Puerto Ayora. The eco-friendly property offers stand-up paddleboarding and kayaking. Years as agent 15. Other specialty Peru. Adventure Life, Missoula, Mont.; 800/344-6118; brian.morgan@adventurelife.com.

MEXICO

Zachary Rabinor

The Puerto Vallarta-based founder of Journey Mexico worked his way up the industry ladder—he's been a tour leader, driver, guide, and logistician—which gives him an inside perspective on the planning process. He collaborates with the country's best hotels on everything from wellness-focused Tulum getaways to culture-filled stays in San Miguel de Allende. And his coordinators personally check in with clients at least three times per trip. Insider clout Rabinor planned a 10-day trip via private jet along the Riviera Maya to Chiapas, Comala, and Punta Mita. The group stopped at archaeological sites, participated in shamanistic rituals, and attended a privately organized charreada (Mexican rodeo). Years as agent 20. Other specialty Central America. Journey Mexico, Puerto Vallarta, Mexico; 800/513-1587; zach@journeymexico.com.

PERU AND BOLIVIA

Marisol Mosquera

A former investment banker, Lima-based Mosquera left London to become a travel advisor in her native country of Peru. She uses her bicultural background to her advantage, focusing on authentic, local experiences: cooking classes in a chef's home, a homestay on the shores of Lake Titicaca, or guided fly-fishing excursions in a remote lagoon in the Peruvian Andes. New favorite Hotel B, in Barranco, is one of Lima's most exciting openings in years. Set in a Belle Époque mansion, the 17 rooms have white marble bathrooms, vintage armoires, and original art. Years as agent 17. Other specialty Galápagos. Aracari Travel, Lima, Peru; 51-1/651-2424; marisol@aracari.com.

SOUTH AMERICA

Barkley Hickox ★

Hickox's parents were in the luxury hotel business, and a childhood spent all over the world easily translated into a career in the travel industry. She's skilled at discovering off-the-radar experiences, such as tasting maté in Argentina, visiting an NGO-sponsored favela in Rio, and meeting a famous sculptor in his Uruguay studio. Indagare Travel uses a membership-based model, with clients paying an annual retainer ranging from $350 to $10,000 per year. Top tip For travelers who want to stay off the tourist track in Rio, Mama Ruiza is a funky bed-and-breakfast in the bohemian Santa Teresa neighborhood. Years as agent 4. Other specialty Italy. Indagare Travel, New York City; 212/988-2611; barkleyh@indagare.com.

Beth Jenkins

At 27, Jenkins is especially in tune with the planning styles of younger travelers, and is a great fit for someone using a specialist for the first time. Over the past few years, she's made it a priority to explore lesser-known destinations, including Roatán, in Honduras, and Peru's Colca Valley—though she is also adept at arranging trips to the classics (Iguazú Falls; Machu Picchu). Special booking Jenkins organized a pisco tour in Lima, including bars that ranged from traditional (La Calesa, for some of the city's best pisco sours) to trendy (Malabar, which uses the liquor in creative ways.) Years as agent 5. Other specialty Honeymoons. McCabe World Travel, McLean, Va.; 703/762-5048; beth@mccabeworld.com.

Eric Sheets

A part-time Quito resident, Sheets prefers experiences that put a new spin on a destination. He may suggest stays in a waterfront villa staffed with chefs and naturalist guides on the Galápagos' Santa Cruz, boat trips to sandy beaches along the Amazon, or guided hikes through Chapada Diamantina National Park—"like the Grand Canyon only covered in lush greenery"—in Bahia, Brazil. New favorite Pikaia Lodge, an alternative to the traditional Galápagos getaway. With 14 rooms (and more in the works) and its own private yacht and boat, it offers a hybrid land-and-sea experience. The resort aims to be carbon neutral by 2017, utilizing solar and other alternative energy sources.

SOUTH AMERICAN FOOD & WINE

Liz Caskey

A trained sommelier and cookbook author, Caskey lives in Santiago with her Chilean husband and business partner. Together, they keep up with the region's booming food scene, and her clients reap the benefits: Caskey can arrange olive-oil tastings in Colchagua, score coveted restaurant reservations in Buenos Aires and Lima, and set up private tours of Mendoza vineyards. New favorite Santiago's Restaurante Peumayen. "The chefs use refined techniques, but the focus is on generations-old cuisines that are traditional to native communities such as the Mapuche and Aymara." Years as agent 9. Other specialty Adventure. Liz Caskey Culinary & Wine Experiences, Santiago, Chile; 904/687-0340; liz@lizcaskey.com.

AFRICA & THE MIDDLE EAST

AFRICA

Sandy Cunningham

Cunningham, who was raised in both Zimbabwe and South Africa, has worked on both sides of the safari industry: she ran camps in Kenya with her husband for six years before settling in the U.S. to plan bespoke journeys. She takes the time to discuss the importance of conservation with clients, and can help them experience it on, for example, a private rhino-tracking safari that spans three camps in South Africa.

Special booking In Kenya's Northern Frontier, Cunningham can arrange a safari with a leading IMAX documentary filmmaker and top East African conservationists, who will help travelers craft their own short films on endangered wildlife. Years as agent 19.

Other specialties Luxury and family travel.

Michael Lorentz ★

Lorentz—the cofounder and CEO of Passage to Africa and cofounder of Safarious.com (a social networking site for safari-goers)—is best known for pioneering off-the-grid experiences. He may push you outside of your comfort zone, but the payoff can include exploring the little-known Zakouma National Park in Chad or accessing rarely seen tribal ceremonies in Ethiopia's Omo River Valley.

New favorite In Cape Town, the Ellerman House's Villa Two, a sophisticated three-bedroom with private terraces, an infinity pool, and a social vibe thanks to the large entertaining area overlooking the water. The property also has a new wine gallery with over 7,500 South African bottles.

Years as agent 29.

Dana Welch

A former trekking guide in Nepal and lodge manager in Zambia, Welch is the go-to advisor for adventure-minded travelers. Her specialty is wildlife safaris, and she partners with a very select group of operators and guides. Recently, she's planned flying safaris across Namibia, lodge-hopping tours in Botswana, and driving itineraries through Mozambique.

Special booking When a client requested close encounters with wildlife in southern Africa, Welch set up an opportunity to assist a veterinary team in a rhino-tracking project at Phinda Private Game Reserve, in South Africa.

Years as agent 22.

Other specialty Adventure travel. The Travel Society, Denver; 303/563-6225; dana@travelsociety.com.

BOTSWANA, ZIMBABWE, AND ZAMBIA

Craig Beal

Beal's South African-born mother founded Travel Beyond, taking him on his first safari at age four. He's been traveling to Botswana and Zimbabwe for more than 30 years, and when he isn't in Africa—staying at new lodges and meeting top guides—he's talking about it at conferences as a cofounder of Safari Professionals of America or in online forums such as TripAdvisor and FlyerTalk.

Discovery The seven-year-old Lion Camp, located in a remote corner of Zambia's Luangwa National Park, known for its walking safaris and views. Thatch-and-canvas chalets overlook an oxbow lagoon and open plain, ideal for wildlife spotting.

Years as agent 9.

Other specialty South Africa.

Travel Beyond, Wayzata, Minn.; 800/876-3131; craigh@travelseeyond.com.

EASTERN AND SOUTHERN AFRICA

Dan Achber

Achber, whose father is South African, spent a few years in Botswana and Zimbabwe, where he managed three safari lodges and had a direct hand in everything from accounting and staffing to customer service. His experience in the bush—and the fact that he's personally vetted nearly 100 safari camps—means he knows the difference between a good camp and a great one.

Excited about Ethiopia, for its compelling mix of wildlife and culture. "Where else can you hang out with gelada baboons in the Simien Mountains while taking in the confluence of ancient Christianity, Judaism, Islam, and native African beliefs?" he says.

Years as agent 6.

Trufflepig, Toronto; 416/628-1272; dan@trufflepig.com.

Elizabeth Gordon ★

The 32-year-old Gordon—who was born in Kenya and worked for Wilderness Safaris in Namibia—understands the particular travel demands of younger clients, who are time-crunched, adventurous, and independent-minded. She visits Africa up to three times a year to stay on top of lodge openings, changes in management, and more.

Top tip The best end to an East African safari: the beaches of northern Mozambique. Top private-island properties include the nine-villa Azura Quilalea and Vamizi, where casitas have carved lattice windows.

Years as agent 6.

Extraordinary Journeys, New York City; 800/403-6012; elizabeth@ejafrica.com.

Tim Lapage

Lapage—who speaks Swahili, French, and Spanish—focuses on off-the-beaten-path safaris for discerning travelers, booking lodges that promote local economic growth and sustainable development whenever possible. His approach is so hands-on that he spends three months a year in Africa, sometimes even flying clients from camp to camp in his own bush plane.

New favorite Richard Branson's Mahali Mzuri lodge, in the Masai Mara region of Kenya. Each of the 12 futuristic-looking tents has its own large deck, a perfect vantage point from which to spot animals, including cheetahs, lions, and elephants.

Years as agent 33.

Other specialties Peru and the Galápagos.

Safari Experts, Park City, Utah; 435/649-4655; safari@safariexperts.com.

Mark William Nolting

Nolting wrote the book on African safaris—literally. The author of Africa's Top Wildlife Countries, he has in-depth knowledge and strong relationships with guides and lodge owners. And he takes client feedback (from more than 10,000 travelers and counting) very seriously, using it to improve every new itinerary.

Special booking For a family of seven, Nolting planned a safari by private jet that included stays at Singita Ebony Lodge, near Kruger National Park; Victoria Falls; Vumbura Plains, in the Okavango Delta; and the Motse, a lodge in South Africa's Tswalu Game Reserve.

Years as agent 28.

Other specialties Madagascar and the Seychelles.

Africa Adventure Company, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; 800/882-9453; safari@africanadventure.com.

Kent Redding ★

Redding was a camp manager and safari guide in Tanzania before moving to Denver to launch Africa Adventure Consultants. He's visited hundreds of top safari destinations and has key relationships with operators and camps. Redding prides himself on keeping value in mind when booking everything from whale-watching via a plane off Hermanus, South Africa, to hot-air-balloon rides over the Serengeti.

Special booking For a group that requested a wildlife-viewing trip with a wellness twist, Redding created a Tanzanian itinerary compete with sunrise yoga classes, twice-daily game drives, spa treatments, and sundowners in the bush.

Jackie Rush

Rush, who often leads trips herself, has traveled throughout the continent for more than 38 years, building strong and lasting connections with lodge owners and private guides. She promotes camps and reserves that are at the forefront of efforts to save elephants and rhinos from poaching.

Excited about The Elephant Watch Camp, located on the banks of Kenya's Ewaso Nyiro River. The eco-friendly property is solar-powered and creates zero waste; its Italian-African restaurant uses food grown on site.

Years as agent 38.

Other specialty Jordan.

Frosch, Washington, D.C.; 800/296-0071; jackie.rush@frosch.com.

Sunit Sanghrajka

This fourth-generation Kenyan designs safaris that showcase sustainable tourism. A founding member of Safari Professionals of America, he seeks out camps and lodges—from Rubondo Island Camp in Tanzania to Wilderness Safaris' Mombo Camp in Botswana's Okavango Delta—that focus on wildlife conservation and deliver excellent game viewing. His connections give him an inside track to VIP experiences.

Special booking Sanghrajka can set up hikes through the chimpanzee habitats of Tanzania's Mahale Mountains National Park with a researcher as your guide.

Years as agent 21.

Alluring Africa, Winter Park, Fla.; 800/510-6059; sunit@alluringafrica.com.

EGYPT

Malaka Hilton

Hilton, whose father was born in Egypt, has an extensive network of friends and family throughout the country, which translates into insider experiences such as meals in local homes, golf at exclusive courses, and private yacht rentals. She once organized a dinner at the foot of the Pyramids.

Insider clout Hilton can plan a trip with a personal shopper to specialty shops such as Tawfik, her preferred jeweler in Cairo, where artisans will design custom pieces for clients.

Years as agent 20.

Other specialties Jordan and the United Arab Emirates.

Admiral Travel International, Sarasota, Fla.; 888/722-3401; malaka@admiraltravel.com.

FAMILY SAFARIS

Leora Rothschild ★

Rothschild, a South Africa native, has experienced everything that she plans for her clients: canoeing with her children in Zambia's Lower Zambezi; taking family to Kenya's Mara River crossing during the great migration; and trekking to see gorillas in Rwanda. She can also set up family-friendly volunteering opportunities in southern Africa.

Discovery Cottar's 1920s Safari Camp, located in a private conservancy adjacent to the Masai Mara in Kenya, has a warrior experience for children. Led by a Masai elder, kids learn to make a fire, throw a spear, and use a bow and arrow.

Years as agent 23.

Other specialty Honeymoon safaris.

Rothschild Safaris, Denver; 800/405-9463; leora@rothschildsafaris.com.

ISRAEL

Rachel Epstein

Epstein, who travels to Israel about five times a year, knows the country from every angle: adventure, cultural, faith-based, and political. She leads many of her own trips, and has planned bar- and bat mitzvah celebrations, private masses and baptisms, wedding-vow renewals, and history-focused vacations.

Excited about The 19th-century Jerusalem train station has been completely refurbished and is now home to seven restaurants, farmers' markets, and an art gallery.

Years as agent 32.

Other specialties Spain and group travel.

Frosch, New York City; 800/866-1623; rachel.epstein@frosch.com.

KENYA AND TANZANIA

Volker Altwater

The self-described safari addict visits Africa twice a year, and continuously nurtures his passion for community-based conservancies. Altwater is a champion of smaller-scale tented camps that focus on land and wildlife preservation.

Excited about Zimbabwe beyond Victoria Falls. The country has one of the highest densities of ancient rock art in southern Africa; you can see San rock paintings—not to mention black and white rhinos—in Matobo National Park. Head to the Matopos Hills for a chance to spot the rare black eagle.

Years as agent 28.

Other specialty South Africa.

Big Five Tours & Expeditions, Stuart, Fla.; 800/345-2445; volker@bigfive.com.

MIDDLE EAST

Jean Newman Glock

After earning a master's in foreign service from Georgetown University, Glock was an international oil consultant and spent 17 years with Smithsonian Journeys. She even worked on a yearlong initiative with the U.S. Department of State and Chamber of Commerce to promote tourism to North Africa. Glock's little black book of archaeologists, government officials, and cultural leaders opens doors for her clients.

Insider clout Glock set up a tour of an active archaeological dig at a Byzantine church in Petra, Jordan, along with a visit to the American Council of Oriental Research headquarters to see sixth-century scrolls rarely shown to the public.

Years as agent 3.

MOROCCO

Michael Diamond

With a keen interest in cultural and experiential travel, Diamond plans everything from cooking classes in a Fez riad to hikes and horseback rides through the country's scenic southern deserts. One special touch: all of his clients are given cell phones during the trip so they can call guides, drivers, and the Marrakesh office of his company at any time.

Excited about Increased interest in family travel to Morocco. Diamond sets up hands-on activities such as drum-making workshops, caftan design, and calligraphy lessons.

Years as agent 13.

Other specialty Turkey.

Heritage Tours Private Travel, New York City; 800/378-4555; michael@htprivatetravel.com.

NAMIBIA

Chris Liebenberg ★

A Namibian national parks contractor turned travel advisor, Liebenberg has lived in every major destination in Namibia and driven almost every road (most recently with his mother) to test self-guided safari options. He has also worked on anti-rhino-poaching missions and elephant and lion conservation projects in Etosha National Park.

New favorite Wilderness Safaris' Hoanib Camp, which debuted in August. The eight-tent property opens up a new segment of the Skeleton Coast where travelers can see lions, long-horned gemsboks, and even South Atlantic seal colonies.

Years as agent 5.

Other specialty Botswana.

Piper & Heath Travel, San Diego; 888/897-2634; chris@piperandheath.com.

SOUTH AFRICA

Tamsyn Fricker ★

Fricker approaches trip planning as an art form—one that involves learning about her clients' concerns, desires, and interests before even discussing the destination. The keyed-in University of South Africa graduate has strong connections with travel suppliers (drivers, lodge owners, guides, and porters), and she also frequently taps into her network of plugged-in locals. In case of an emergency, there is a South Africa-based team to provide round-the-clock support—and Fricker herself is also available 24/7. Excited about SecretEats, a series of underground pop-up dinners and other events in Cape Town. "Travelers have the opportunity to dine with Capetonians."

Years as agent 6.

Other specialty Southern Africa. Travel Artistry Africa, Houston; 281/974-3662;

SOUTHERN AFRICA

Cherri Briggs

Briggs has houses in Zambia and Botswana, and spends six to nine months a year traveling the continent, including Chad, Congo, Kenya, and beyond. This legwork allows her to bypass destination-management companies and book every hotel, lodge, transfer, guide, and driver personally, which often reduces the overall cost. Briggs and her husband have also founded a slew of community development projects in Zambia, including solar-powered irrigation systems. New favorite Anabezi Luxury Tented Camp, located in the most remote part of the Lower Zambezi National Park, in Zambia. "It affords a great level of comfort in the middle of absolutely nowhere," she says. "It is in the heart of an immense, untouched wilderness area with a particular abundance of leopard."

Years as agent 20.

Other specialties The Seychelles and Indian Ocean islands.

Explore, Inc., Steamboat Springs, Colo.; 888/596-6377; cherri@exploreafrika.net.

Julian Harrison

Born and raised in South Africa, this former game ranger and co-author of Fodor's African Safari knows when to visit certain destinations to maximize wildlife viewing, keeping factors such as rain, migratory patterns, and vegetation in mind. Over the past few years, Harrison—who can arrange home visits with scientists and conservationists—has boated the Okavango Delta, gone gorilla trekking in Congo, canoed the Zambezi River, and fished in Malawi.

New favorite The intimate, three-tent Little Tubu Tree Camp, in the Okavango Delta. Guests can explore via open safari vehicles as well as mokoros (dugout canoes).

Years as agent 28.

Other specialty East and central Africa.

Premier Tours, Philadelphia; 800/545-1910; julianh@premiertours.com.

Teresa Sullivan ★

Since founding Mango African Safaris 15 years ago with her business partner Casey Hermansen, Sullivan has intensively vetted each experience they offer, spending weeks at a time on the ground. They have hitchhiked, taken trains, ridden camels, horses, and elephants, always seeking out what's around the next corner. Sullivan pays particular attention to the pacing of a trip, limiting one- and two-night stays, and is adept at booking travel during the more affordable green season.

Insider clout Conservation is a passion of Sullivan's, and she has close relationships with local organizations. Her clients have released cheetahs back into the wild, gone on game counts with the Cheetah Conservation Fund, and spent time with Map Ives of the Botswana Rhino Project.

Years as agent 15.

Other specialties East Africa and Indian Ocean islands.

ASIA

BURMA

Rebecca Mazzaro

Mazzaro has traveled extensively through Burma, seeking out its secluded corners and developing relationships with managers at top hotels. She can set up a hot-air-balloon ride over Mandalay, a guided hike around Inle Lake, or a biking trip through the scenic Shan state. Excited about Sanctuary Retreats river cruises on the new Sanctuary Ananda, launching in November with Bagan-to-Mandalay itineraries through tribal regions.

Years as agent 16.

Other specialty India.

Asia Transpacific Journeys, Boulder, Colo.; 800/642-2742; rebecca@asiatranspacific.com.

CAMBODIA

Andy Booth ★

After realizing that Cambodians were only marginally benefiting from the travel industry, British-born Booth moved to Siem Reap to found ABOUTAsia, which creates bespoke trips, with all profits going to support local schools. His specialty is tailoring itineraries to avoid crowds at the temples of Angkor and hiring extremely knowledgeable, English-speaking guides.

Insider clout Booth can arrange private visits to a live archaeological dig, where you can meet the scholar running the program.

Years as agent 9.

ABOUTAsia Travel, Siem Reap, Cambodia; 855-12/338-872; a.booth@aboutasiatravel.com.

CHINA

Stan Godwyn

Godwyn, who speaks Mandarin, has lived in Shanxi province and has a master's in anthropology with a focus on Chinese archaeology. He nimbly manages common hiccups such as unannounced flight changes and gridlocked traffic in Beijing. Regular visits are essential, he says, since the country is changing so rapidly.

Excited about The museum at the Sanxingdui ruins in Chengdu, dedicated to Sichuan's little-known Bronze Age culture. The well-preserved masks and statues are unlike any other artifacts in China.

Years as agent 20.

Other specialty Southeast Asia. TravelStore, Sacramento, Calif.; 916/830-5511; stan.g@travelstore.com.

CHINA AND TIBET

Mei Zhang

The Beijing-based Zhang formed WildChina with a mission to take travelers off the beaten path, showing the other side of Shanghai and Beijing and introducing them to destinations such as Tengchong and Baoshan, in her native Yunnan region.

Excited about New ways to enjoy Dali, Yunnan. Stay in the 18-room Windoo Resort, on the edge of Er Hai Lake. Bike around the water on a recently added ring road with Cangshan Mountain views.

Years as agent 14.

Other specialties Southeast Asia and North Korea.

WildChina, Beijing; 888/902-8808; mei.zhang@wildchina.com.

HONG KONG

Laura Woo

Raised in Hong Kong, Woo often returns to her hometown to uncover shops, restaurants, and hotels. She's particularly adept at advising travelers on transportation and knows the ins and outs of the city's ferries, trains, funiculars, and buses.

New favorite The Auberge Discovery Bay hotel. There's free Wi-Fi, a restaurant with South China Sea views, a spa and pool, and an activity center that can arrange excursions. Oceanfront rooms have floor-to-ceiling windows.

Years as agent 32.

Other specialties Hawaii and Macao. West University Travel, Houston; 800/256-0640; woo@hal-pc.org.

INDIA

Jonny Bealby

This former travel journalist is a pro at pairing India's most popular destinations—Agra, Jaipur, Delhi, and Mumbai—with less-frequented rural areas, his point of passion. His knowledge of Central Asian—influenced Leh, in the Indus Valley, and the Nubra Valley (dotted with ruined palaces) is unparalleled.

Insider clout Bealby planned a 50th birthday party in Rajasthan that included fire breathers, snake charmers, and a live band that arrived by elephant.

Years as agent 12.

Other specialty Central Asia. Wild Frontiers, London; 44-20/7736-3968; jonny@wildfrontiers.co.uk.
